Some basic facts

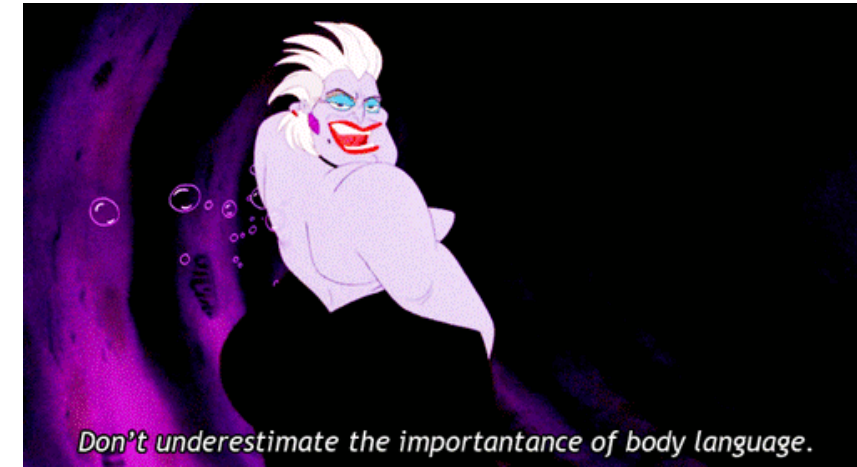

- Bunny's live in groups
- They're most active in twilight times
- They live in little bunny burrows
- They make things smell like them, dig the ground a bit and leave poops / pee behind to show territory

Some bunny language

- The moving of the nose: I'm interested in this
- A rise of the tail: danger
- Thump: danger
- Flattening of the ears: anger/threatened
- Flicking sand in your direction: fuck you (this has happened to me several times)
- Nudge against you: Hi! :)
- Gritting teeth lightly: I like this SO FUCKING MUCH I'm so comfy
- Gritting teeth but with the sound of almost grinding stone: I HATE THIS I'm really uncomfy
- Weird jump: WHOOO I'm so happyyyyyy

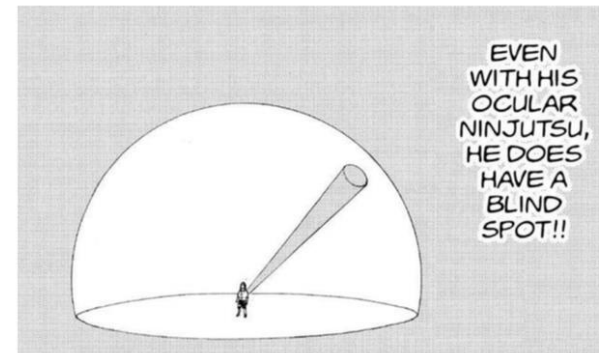

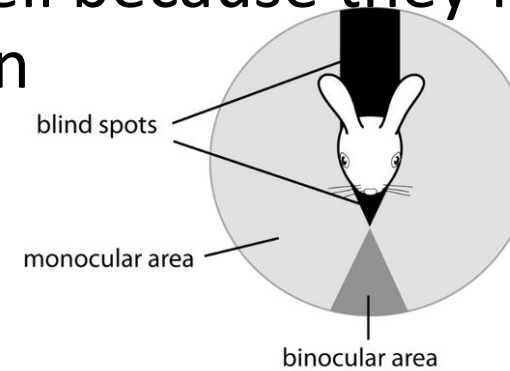

Not super fun fact! Bunnies can let out a scream if they're really scared.

How to ~~adopt~~ approach a bunny

- Bunnies can't see up and down as well because they're prey animals
show your hand in their field of vision
- Be slow
- Let em sniff

- Pro tip: Just take potential bites like a (wo)man they're literal fluff balls you'll handle it.

Introducing bunnies to each other

- Female bunny is the “alpha” (yes poke I put this in here for you)
- Neutral area
- Power struggle is visible they’ll fight a little probably
- ALPHA gets licked on the head BETA licks on the head
